

Oca – a tuber native to the southern Andes – called potato nuggets

Ahipa – originates in the high Andes of South America you can eat it raw or cooked. It is a variety of a potato

Arracacha - they taste like a cross between celery, cabbage, and chestnuts

Maca is a relative of the radish and smells similar to butterscotch

Yacon - The texture and flavor are very similar to jicama

Olluca a root vegetable that is similar to a potato

